

Do you have trouble
balancing work and love?

Friday, November 3rd, 2017

HARMONIZING WORK & LOVE

An Azevedo Family Psychology Workshop

Over and over we are told to balance work and family, as if they are two separate things that can be weighed individually.

What if we looked at them more like a symphony? The elements of work and love and self are different instruments. They all need to play in harmony with one another, sometimes simultaneously, sometimes solo, and sometimes resting silent. Their goal is to play the same song passionately and elegantly.

It is hard enough to get one symphony to play well. What happens when you have two symphonies? How about two different songs? That's marriage, and their harmony creates beauty, fun, elegance, and utility. That effort takes practiced skill and intention.

This workshop will set you on your way, by helping articulate marital, work, and family goals equally well, chart a plan for achieving those goals, and find a way to coordinate all the instruments. Harmonizing Work & Love begins the process of getting on the same sheet of music and learning to play it well.

Christ the King Lutheran Church

600 Walnut St., Cary, NC 27512.

Event will be held inside The Luther Café

Check in is at 8:30 AM

Workshop will start at 9 AM.

We should be done by 4:30 or 5:00 PM.

The cost is $300 per couple.

Lunch will be catered.